UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA GALLOGLY COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

THE J.H. FELGAR SOCIETY

The J.H. Felgar Society is a community of Gallogly College of Engineering alumni and friends dedicated to the college's vision of educating engineers.

By making new, five-year commitments to the discretionary funds of the college and its schools and programs, Felgar Society members provide the dean and school directors with funds necessary to take advantage of strategic opportunities that would otherwise go unfunded.

In our pursuit of excellence, Felgar Society discretionary funds are increasingly vital to the Gallogly College of Engineering. The Felgar Society directly impacts the college in a variety of meaningful ways.

IMPACT

STUDENT SUPPORT | The Felgar Society provides student scholarships, travel grants to competitions and conferences, and experiential learning opportunities. It supports programs like the Multicultural Engineering and Jerry Holmes Engineering Leadership programs. Felgar Society funds support renovations in key student laboratories and learning spaces.

FACULTY SUPPORT | Discretionary resources help the college recruit and retain outstanding teachers, mentors and researchers. Funds empower faculty, ensuring they have the equipment and graduate fellows necessary to be successful.

PROGRAM SUPPORT | Felgar Society members support outreach efforts like on-campus summer camps that encourage middle and high school students to study engineering.
