Program Student Learning Outcomes

College: Arts & Science
Program: Psychology, PhD

Upon completion of the Ph.D. in Psychology, students should be able to:

- Formulate or pose a research question or scholarly project
- Conduct independent research using methods appropriate to the field or discipline.
- Communicate in writing the purpose and design of their project, its results, and their interpretations and conclusions in relation to existing literature.
- Present original research in a public, peer-reviewed forum.
- Critique, interpret, and evaluate the work of scientific peers.