

GLOBAL INEQUITIES AND CLIMATE CHANGE

What a Feminist Climate Justice Approach Teaches Us

A talk with

Dr. Farhana Sultana

Professor, Department of Geography and the Environment, Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, Syracuse University

Moderator: Emma Colven, Assistant Professor of Global Environment, University of Oklahoma

Monday, March 21, 3-4 p.m. CST (4-5 p.m. EST)

via Zoom and Facebook @oucis

Join the webinar at <https://bit.ly/3rFy4pg>

Farhana Sultana is an internationally recognized interdisciplinary scholar of political ecology, water governance, climate justice, postcolonial development, transnational feminism, and decolonizing academia. Author of several dozen publications, her recent books are The Right to Water: Politics, Governance and Social Struggles (2012), Eating, Drinking: Surviving (2016) and Water Politics: Governance, Justice, and the Right to Water (2020). Dr. Sultana received the Glenda Laws Award from the American Association of Geographers for "outstanding contributions to geographic research on social issues" in 2019. She is Professor at Syracuse University, where she is also Research Director for Environmental Collaboration and Conflicts at the Program for the Advancement of Research on Conflicts and Collaboration (PARCC).

For accommodation on the basis of disability contact stephaniesager@ou.edu.

