Ph.D. FINANCIAL SUPPORT

In most cases, Price College PhD students receive an 11-month Graduate Assistantship (GA) position as part of their admission offer. The GA position is a combination of teaching and research and includes a competitive monthly stipend. The GA appointment includes a full tuition waiver up to the number of hours required for the degree.

Students are responsible for university fees, which are expected to be about $1,000 per year starting in the 2023/2024 school year depending on course load and stage in the program, generally fees decline over the course of the program.

Additionally, incoming PhD students receive a $4,000 research budget to be used over the duration of the program for research activities such as conference participation, travel, data, and other research-related needs.
